ICELAND OVERLAND AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHY EXTENSION

September 19 - 21, 2019

with Chris Linder

OVERVIEW

The glacier-fed rivers of Iceland's southern coast form colorful braids as they flow across black volcanic sands to the Atlantic Ocean, yielding endless incredible photographic opportunities full of luscious abstract design, but only when seen from 1,000 feet in the air. We invite you to join us for an extension to the Iceland Interior by 4WD expedition to do doors-off aerial photography of the beautiful designs and patterns rendered by these rivers. With two days on location, we will have ample time to get everyone aloft for aerials over the rivers Thorsá, Hólsá, and Markarfljót. We will even be able to photograph the famous Seljalandsfoss waterfall from the helicopter, as it flows down from the Eyafjallajökull icecap.

If weather cooperates and we complete our flights the first day, we will visit some of our favorite sites in the region. If flight conditions aren't suitable the first day on location, we will make an excursion by land, and attempt flights on the second day.

We will stay at the Aurora Lodge Hotel on September 19 and 20, to be near the rivers and the best field locations in the area.

This is a special opportunity to make images capturing a new perspective of Iceland's unique geography.

ITINERARY

September 19 – 20: Depart Reykjavik after breakfast and head to the south coast. Helicopter flights will be scheduled on the first and/or second day based on weather conditions and optimal times for photography. When not doing the helicopter flights, we will visit some of our favorite sites in the region. Overnight Aurora Lodge Hotel (B,L,D).

September 21 – Departure Day, Helicopter Extension: After breakfast we will drive back to Keflavik. Those departing on afternoon or evening flights will be dropped off at the airport, those staying overnight in Keflavik will be dropped off at their hotel. International flights should not depart prior to 3:00pm (B).
